His books were widely read, not only by students and masters in theology, but by many other thoughtful men and women, for whom he had bridged the chasm between the past and the present, and had made the Christian faith possible in a time of doubt and transition. The truth and charm of his first well-known work, An Outline of Christian Theology, was at once recognized, and each succeeding book met a hearty welcome from eager readers. These books, quiet and clear in style, were evidently the utterances of one intent on his message and conveying it in the most direct and simple way; yet they seemed somehow alive with the personality of the writer, and many readers felt his magnetism so strongly that they wished to draw nearer to the man himself. From every direction letters expressive of keen interest and deep gratitude came to him from persons who knew only his work and his name. Before he began to write books he had been a minister of the gospel, a preacher of singular earnestness and power. Later, he had been a teacher of theology. As a preacher he had the art of catching the attention of his auditors at once and of holding it. He saw his congregation as individuals, and the listener often felt as if he were being directly addressed. Something of this is apparent in his books, and without any effort to do so he established a personal relation with his readers. About the Publisher Forgotten Books...
